OMAHA PARKS CONVERTED INTO TENTED CITY; HOMELESS TORNADO VICTIMS ARE COMFORTABLE

SUMMARY OF DAMAGE DONE BY TORNADO AT OMAHA.
Omaha.—An unofficial summary of the Omaha tornado follows:
Lives lost, 115.
Seriously injured, 322.
Slightly injured, not less than 1,000.
Amputations necessary, 16.
Houses destroyed, 822.
Homes partially wrecked, 2,100.
Property loss, $7,500,000.
Dead in surrounding towns, 59.
Injured, 150.
Property loss, $1,000,000.
Number of families fed in Omaha, 733.

Omaha, Neb.—Omaha completed its first week of tornado relief work. Just seven days after the big tornado passed through the city, every family rendered homeless was fairly comfortable in places in which to abide and every mouth has been fed.

Four hundred military tents arrived from the army supply depot at St. Louis and were distributed among those who have not yet secured homes. Many of these have been set up in Bemis park. That former pleasure ground resembles a military camp. At night fires, made from the wreckage of houses, burn brightly before the various tent doors.

Maj. Carl F. Hartman, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Omaha, has been officially declared director of relief stations. Every public school teacher in the city was sent into the affected districts to seek out the families of their pupils and to see that all are supplied. Many cases were discovered in which the families were too proud to ask relief, but where it was greatly needed.

All Streets Now Open.
Debris has been so far removed that the last street was pronounced open. All street cars are running, but electric lights have not yet been turned on in the wrecked districts. No effort has been made to remove debris from lots, and that in the street has only been hauled to one side, merely to open the streets for traffic.

In preparation for the immense crowds expected, three more companies of state troops arrived, making 750 soldiers who guard the wrecked district from looters and too inquisitive sightseers. Railroads at first refused to operate excursion trains into the city, but the relief committee decided that the influx of strangers probably would swell the relief funds. Every excursionist will have an opportunity to make a donation.

Labor in Demand.
Labor is in demand. Every man who can wield an implement of any kind is employed. Hundreds of workmen are flocking in from outside towns and cities. There is work for all of them. Ten times as many workmen as are here can secure employment. There are 800 houses to be entirely reconstructed and 2,000 needing more or less repairs. All the building trades unions have passed resolutions declaring that there will be no advance in union wages, despite the tremendous increase in the demand and the offers of almost any amount often made to workmen for immediate service.

Dealers in building materials, lumber, millwork, etc., have announced through the Builders' exchange that prices will not be increased. All have placed rush orders for tremendous stocks.

Planning for Funds to Build.
The matter of furnishing funds for the rebuilding of the wrecked homes is a serious problem and one upon which a committee of business and financial men have been working several days. It has been decided to ask a popular subscription from the people, as well as a bond issue of $1,000,000 from the county. After the building and loan companies have made loans up to the point permitted by law, the funds derived from the bond issue, as well as from public subscriptions, will be utilized. The second mortgages will bear an extremely low rate of interest, if any at all, and will run for years, giving the homemaker an opportunity of gradually repaying for his home.

Eleven churches were completely wrecked. Many of the homeless congregations have accepted invitations to use other churches until their own can be rebuilt, but others will hold their services out in the streets before the wrecked edifices.

City Aids Outside Points.
Despite the fact that Omaha is so sorely stricken, this city has sent financial relief as well as food and clothing to several of the smaller towns out in the state which were wrecked by the same storm which slashed its way through this city.

Complete outfits of kitchen necessities, together with the furniture which is distributed by the committee, are furnished by the wholesalers at absolute cost, the wholesaler himself paying the freight charges. Many Omaha families will begin their real struggle for existence anew with nothing but the outfit given by the relief committee. This consists of the military tent, groceries enough for the present, clothing given by the committee, and the kitchen outfit.

Large corporations have begun to open their purses freely. The International Harvester company sent a check for $1,000, with the statement that it would be glad to help Nebraska farmers in the storm-ravaged district.

Chicago.—After 94 days the board of arbitration selected to set a wage scale for 14,000 street railway employees in Chicago, who threatened to strike, reached a verdict.

Winner—'I have only one friend on earth—my dog.' Optimistic Adviser—'Why don't you get another dog?'

The devastation caused by the Omaha tornado is graphically illustrated by this photograph, taken at Lincoln boulevard and Thirty-fourth street, directly in the path of the storm.

Darkness Quickly Follows.

After the tornado followed a deep darkness and a dense downpour of rain. Lights were out, traffic stopped, telephone communication broken.

The stricken neighborhoods rushed to one another's relief, the imprisoned were dug out of cellars in which they had taken refuge. Nearby homes were turned into hospitals, the entire medical staff of the community drafted for emergency work.

Confagurations bursting out in the wake of the storm kept the fire department busy, and gave a lurid background to the scene of devastation.

Autos and ambulances were called into requisition, and with the speedy cessation of the rain, although street cars were stopped and street lamps extinguished, thousands from all over the city poured forth as curious spectators, the procession to and from continuing through the night.

Only with the break of day, however, was the terrible desolation fully visible.

Arrests are made of all suspicious characters, and looting is being held at a minimum.

The tornado came just at dusk, accompanied by a deafening din and roar, collapsing houses like cardboard and tossing all sorts of objects about, passing on so quickly that its coming and going seemed to be simultaneous.
